out of his car at East St. Louis. He returned and took her to St. Louis where his sister, Mrs. Daisy Smith, secured employment for her and gave her a home.

When the Kenosha girl was returned from St. Louis she admitted that she had gone voluntarily on the trip with the clergyman, according to a statement she gave to Lieut. Frank Schneeberger, chief of detectives in Kenosha. She denied that he had harmed her.

The department of justice agents said they have evidence that the pair registered at hotels at Waukegan, Bloomington and East St. Louis as Christian Anderson and wife, of Tulsa, Okla.
